

2 MEN INDICTED IN SALES TO U. S. OUT UNDER $5000 BOND

Officers of St. Louis Coffee and Spice Mills Accused of Giving Short Weight and Inferior Coffee.

CLOTHING FRAUD AT JEFFERSON BARRACKS

Army Sergeant Gets Two Years for Theft—13 Second Hand Dealers in Alleged Conspiracy to Control Bids.

Louis Christopheron of 3519 Crittenden street, president of the St. Louis Coffee and Spice Mills, 407 North Main street, and Charles J. Bauer of 3146A Compton avenue, secretary-treasurer of the same concern, were at liberty today on bonds of $5000 each, following their indictment by the Federal grand jury yesterday afternoon. They are charged with conspiring to defraud the Government by selling short-weight packages of coffee and inferior grades of coffee for army use.

Thirteen dealers in secondhand clothing were indicted jointly, charged with conspiring to defraud the Government by selling short-weight packages of clothing for army use. The dealers are Fred A. Dalton, Joseph Gelber, Benjamin Felber, Louis Morris, Morris House, Hyman B. Morris, Morris, Sam Ruben, Joseph Moldenfeld, Sam Spelky, Sam Novotz, Isadore Fitter and Moses Hollander.

Dalton, who is a saloon keeper and secondhand dealer at 7311 South Broadway, also was indicted on a charge of receiving stolen property from Jefferson Barracks. His partner, Joseph F. Schuler, was jointly indicted with him. At the barracks it was stated that Acting Sergeant Arthur J. Schuler, of the barracks, had been court-martialed and sentenced to two years in the Leavenworth disciplinary barracks for alleged deals with Dalton, and that a First Lieutenant, who was in a convalescent hospital in this country, has been ordered to the barracks for investigation. Schuler was the principal witness against Wells.

It was charged that Wells surreptitiously sold to Dalton bundles of civilian clothing which had been purchased by the Government from the barracks and which were to have been sold at auction for the Government's benefit. Wells was dealt at the receiving station where the clothing was turned in and either purchased, shipped to the barracks or sold at auction. Between Dec. 31, 1917, and April 25, 1918, Wells is said to have stolen 69 bundles.

Short Weight Charged. In the indictment of Christopheron and Bauer it is charged they sold short-weight coffee to the army, billing the goods to Capt. A. E. Piper of the Quartermaster's Department and that the boxes in which the coffee was packed, although marked as containing one pound each, did not contain that amount.

False vouchers for payment by the Government for the coffee were obtained by Christopheron and Bauer, and the vouchers were made out by the company, at the direction of Christopheron and Bauer, it is charged. The vouchers were made out by Christopheron and Bauer, it is charged. The vouchers were made out by Christopheron and Bauer, it is charged.

The amount involved in the transactions with the company is placed at $12,980.12, but the amount which the Government charges it was defrauded of is not set forth. One count in the indictment charges also the selling of coffee to the army which was "molded, rotten and of inferior grade."

Clothing Dealers Indicted. In the indictment of the clothing dealers it is charged they held several meetings and formed a conspiracy, agreeing to make only two bids on the clothing offered for sale at the barracks and for all to share in the profits from the cheap bids they expected would result.

District Attorney Oliver explained, in this connection, that the authorities at the barracks, during the mobilization of men, had large quantities of civilian clothing which the Quartermaster's Department bought from men inducted into the service when they donned military uniforms. This clothing was offered for sale and bids were asked for on the clothing on hand and what might accumulate later, to cover a period of several months.

The prices which they agreed to bid, it is alleged, were 7 1/2 cents a pound for goods on hand, 10 cents for goods in future and 4 cents for furs. These prices, it is charged, were far less than reasonable market value and less than would have been offered by the dealers operating independently.

The District Attorney said the depositions of the alleged fraud cases about through the failure of the men, who were chosen by the commission of dealers to make the purchase of the clothing, to divide the

Protest Against "Luxury" Tax by Associated Retailers Here

The following statement was issued by the Associated Retailers after a meeting at which the proposed tax on "luxuries" was discussed yesterday:

"Probably few of the public realize how enormous a burden of taxation certain features of the new revenue bill, now in the hands of a conference committee of Congress, would put upon the man and woman who take a natural pride in their personal appearance and who strive also to keep their homes comfortable and pleasant.

"Under one of the schedules in the new tax measure, which soon may be law in its present form unless the public protests against its objectionable features, many articles of attire, home furnishings and articles which for many years have been in familiar use not by the 'idle rich' alone but by people of even modest means, will carry a tax which must be paid by the consumer at the time of purchase. These taxes, which have been termed 'luxury' taxes, were included in the original draft not only for the need of raising a huge sum of money to carry on the war but also desired to check the consumption of articles which are deemed of vital necessity so that machinery, labor and materials might be more quickly found for the manufacture of the things the war required.

"Even while we were at war there was a marked difference of opinion concerning the necessity and wisdom of classing articles of common use as 'luxuries' or 'non-essentials.' Now that the war has ended and the need of curtailing production has given place to an obligation on the part of the Government to find work for the soldier boys coming out of Uncle Sam's service there is an overwhelming weight of public opinion against taxes upon consumption, but this opinion will not protect the public unless it is forcefully expressed.

"In the case of the 'luxury' taxes, which are arbitrary and wholly arbitrary, the tax is set upon all sorts of common articles, carpets and rugs, umbrellas, hats for men, millinery, hosiery, shirts and many other articles of the type which, if sold at prices higher than those which Congress deems necessary, must carry a percentage tax to be paid by the purchaser.

"This if Mrs. Brown, in the case of her appearance should purchase a pair of silk hose at more than $2, she must pay 10 per cent upon that part of the purchase price which exceeds $2. It may be that Mrs. Brown has no more money than the luxury taxes will place upon the bill they show many inconsistencies. For example, the working girl who by dint of saving and sacrifice is able to gratify her natural longing for a little better quality in shoes, stockings, umbrella, parasol or pocketbook, will be obliged to pay a tax. On the other hand, the wealthy woman who chooses a dress without being required to pay a tax.

"Besides the obvious burden the luxury taxes will place upon the public, they will also operate to increase the cost of desired merchandise because the business of computing and collecting and making returns to the Government for the taxes collected will prove so difficult that some retail merchants figure the cost of collection will be almost as great as the tax itself. Ultimately this too must be paid by the public in the form of a higher cost of distribution.

"Many customers of some of the leading stores are asking us to sign petitions expressing their opposition to the luxury taxes. These petitions, which may be signed at any of the larger stores, will be forwarded in a few days to the proper officials of Congress in the attempt to demonstrate to our lawmakers how unpopular these arbitrary luxury taxes are certain to be the eyes of the consuming public."

Spills Evenly with their confederates. Two of the dealers, charged with the tax evasion, were found in the transaction, the District Attorney said, wrote to the army authorities, telling them of the conspiracy. An investigation by the Intelligence Department of the Army followed.

115 Indictments Returned. The grand jury returned a total of 115 indictments, 14 of which were suppressed. A majority of the indictments returned charge thefts from interstate shipments of freight and express, violations of various kinds of the anti-narcotic laws, thefts from the mails, thefts from Government warehouses and violations of the Mann act.

The grand jury had been in session continuously for six weeks. The members were discharged from further service following their report yesterday.

TROOPS READY IN EVENT OF TROUBLE IN SEATTLE

General Strike Paralyzes Business; Newspapers Suspend, Schools Close, Street Cars Stop Running.

By the Associated Press. SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 7.—With complete industrial and commercial paralysis threatened by the general strike of craftsmen in support of wage demands by shipyard metal workers, Seattle municipal officials and business men cast about today for some means of relieving the situation. Nearly 1000 troops from Camp Lewis, under command of Brigadier-General John L. Hayden, are in the city on orders from the War Department and ready to act in the event of disorders.

A summary of the situation that faced Seattle today—the second day of the general strike—shows that newspapers have suspended publication, schools and theaters have closed, street cars have ceased operating and shipping is being diverted to Oregon ports because there is no one to unload the cargoes. Soup kitchens have been established by culinary workers for the benefit largely of the strikers, who are given special rates. Nonunionists pay higher for the same "military mess" service.

Few Unions Out in Tacoma. At Tacoma, where a similar sympathetic strike is in progress, the situation is reported to be giving indications of improvement. Only a few trade unions participated in the general work-out. The street car men there are expected to return to work today, as it is said their strike orders were issued through a misunderstanding.

The barbers also are to reopen their shops. Other Tacoma crafts on strike are the lumber workers and the retail clerks.

Approximately 500 troops under command of Brigadier-General Frank B. Watson are on duty in Tacoma, guarding power plants and the Tacoma Shipbuilding Co.'s yards, an open shop concern, and other units are ready for emergencies at the armory.

30,000 Went Out in Seattle. In Seattle it is estimated that 30,000 men and women left their employment yesterday to aid the 25,000 striking shipyard workers.

During the night Seattle hotels operated without engineers, maids or laundry service. Before the strike the hotels laid in large supplies of candles and food, or, in the event of possible discontinuance of electric power and shortage of supplies, the electricians, however, remained at their posts in the power houses.

During the night street car service will be resumed, Mayor Ole Hanson announced, just as soon as the police and troops can accompany the cars to the street.

The Mayor has urged the strikers to reopen and has suggested that business men purchase them if they do not, with a view to re-establishing service immediately.

U. R. COMPLAINS THAT CONDUCTORS CHEAT

Says Nickels and Dimes Are Changed So They Don't Register and Then "Taken Out."

The United Railways Co. has complained to Federal authorities that some of its conductors have discovered a method by which the company is being defrauded of fares.

Dimes and nickels have been mutilated in such a way as to make them have the same diameter as pennies. This is for the purpose of so altering these coins that they will not register when they go through the fare boxes. The boxes were designed for the collection of five-cent fare. Dimes and nickels registered as they go through, but pennies do not. The only check on the pennies under the six-cent fare system is that when making his return for the day the conductor must turn in one penny with every nickel that has registered in the box and two pennies with each dime.

Nickels and Dimes Mutilated. The advantage of altering nickels and dimes to the diameter of pennies is that, as they go through the box without registering they do not have to be turned into the company, and neither do the pennies accompany them. When a mutilated dime, with two pennies, goes into the box a conductor can take all three coins.

On a mutilated nickel and its accompanying penny the profit is six cents.

Dimes have been rolled or hammered out at the edges to bring them up to the diameter of the penny, and nickels have been cut or ground around the edges to reduce them to that size.

Some conductors have had a stock of these altered coins and have given them in change for larger coin offered by passengers. In most cases passengers who receive such coins from conductors do not make a complaint, as they might do in a store. The remedy is obvious. They drop the coins in the box for the payment of their fare.

Coins Used Over and Over. The practical certainty that the coins will be accepted and at once put back in the box is said to have made the practice of the deception easy and to have made it unnecessary for conductors to carry a very large supply of the mutilated coins.

After the coins go through the box they fall into a till to which a conductor can go at any time and he can use the altered dimes and nickels over and over in making change. If he can contrive to have 10 of the altered dimes or twenty of the diminished nickels, he can make a day in the day he adds $1.20 to his income and still has his working capital of off-size money.

Resident McCulloch and Superintendent Cameron of United Railways refused to say how extensive the practice had been or to discuss it in any way. Federal officials said some of the mutilated coins had found their way to the subway for redemption. There is no law against mutilation of nickels, but the mutilation of dimes, or other silver coins, is punishable by a fine of not more than $2000, or not more than five years in prison, or both.

Coaches Had Been Turned Over by Germans to France, and Passengers Are Asphyxiated.

Lieut. E. Humphrey Price and Two Buglers in 138th Are Recipients of D. S. C.

Charles B. Rymer and Joseph J. Coff Cited — Officer Is Home on Leave From Hospital.

Three members of the One Hundred and Thirty-eighth (St. Louis) Infantry are named as recipients of the Distinguished Service Cross, for extraordinary heroism in action, in an official bulletin of the War Department, issued for publication today.

They are First Lieutenant Edward Humphrey Price of Company B, and two buglers of F Company, Charles B. Rymer and Joseph J. Coff. The official citations in their cases are:

First Lieutenant Edward H. Price, 138th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Cheppy, Sept. 26. At the head of his company Lieut. Price charged and captured a machine gun nest defending the southeastern approach to Cheppy, and was the first to enter the town. With his company of about 40 men he captured 4 guns and 124 prisoners.

On the following day he led his men through direct artillery fire with only two casualties, due to his dexterity of command. Later he was seriously wounded, but continued with his company until physical exhaustion prevented his going farther. R. Coleman Price, father, 4500 McPherson avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Bugler Charles B. Rymer, Company F, 138th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Very, Sept. 26. Bugler Rymer was a member of a liaison group who worked their way 1000 yards in advance of their first wave. Surrounded by machine gun fire they were forced to take refuge in a trench. Bugler Rymer worked his way along the trench to a clump of woods, where he captured a German officer alone. Assisted by two other soldiers, he later killed an enemy machine gunner, and took 23 prisoners. Robert Rymer, brother, 4914 Page boulevard, St. Louis, Mo.

Bugler Joseph J. Coff, Company F, 138th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Very, Sept. 26. Bugler Coff was a member of a liaison group who worked their way 1000 yards in advance of their first wave. Surrounded by enemy machine guns, Bugler Coff, accompanied by two machine gunners, silenced two machine gun nests and captured 23 prisoners. He was seriously gassed, but persisted in remaining in the fight until exhausted. Julian Coff, brother, 3043 Fair avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Lieut. Price is now at his home on leave from the hospital at Camp Taylor, Ky. He learned first of the citation from a Post-Dispatch reporter, and started them for the rear, after cutting the buttons off their pants, so they would have to keep their hands in their pockets.

"We started forward again, through a hail of machine-gun bullets and big shells bursting all around us, till we came to another well dugout. A Colonel was in it.

"Right in front of the town there was a steep bluff, a creek and a marsh, heavily wooded. It seemed to me that there was a chance to get my men through, and I took the chance. It was a case of going ahead and getting into the town; to put a stop to that machine gun fire on the flank. There was not time or opportunity to wait for consultation with higher officers. It was up to us.

"The boche, it seemed, had not counted on our trying to get through that marsh and over that bluff, and while we got some attention from the machine gunners, they were mostly engaged on the flanks and we got through into the town. When the town was occupied, that ended the machine gun resistance in front of the town. In all, I would say about 15 men were with me, as I had some men from G Company as well as men from E Company."

Lieut. Price is 23 years old, and is a Washington University graduate of the class of 1917. His diploma was given him after he left the university to enter active service. He served the previous year with the First Regiment at Laredo, Tex., on the Mexican border.

Rymer Wrote of Fighting. Bugler Rymer is 19 years old, and lived formerly with his brother, Robert Rymer, now of 3264 Hamilton avenue. His father, D. W. Rymer, lives in Cleveland, Tenn. He wrote of the fighting near Very, saying: "It was like what I imagine the end of time is like." He did not tell of being decorated.

Bugler Coff is 36 years old, and his brother, Julian Coff, now lives at 4254 Evans avenue. He was formerly a moving picture actor, according to his brother, and served in the border with the First Regiment in 1916. He was wounded slightly in November, according to a notification sent to the brother.

Coff told of the Argonne battle in a letter dated Oct. 24, written in a hospital where he was taken after being injured by a shell explosion. He wrote:

"Your wish that I get a Boche was granted, and also one for every member of the family. The Boche didn't expect us so early in the morning, and was getting breakfast when we popped in their dugout. They had some swell rabbit stew, German style, and we made them taste it first, to be sure it wasn't poisoned. But we didn't give them much, as we were pretty hungry, so we cleaned up on the stew, and started them for the rear, after cutting the buttons off their pants, so they would have to keep their hands in their pockets.

all booted and spurred and ready to fly, but his orderly beat him to his horse and flew the coop. The Colonel wasn't a bit more. Oh, I would hate to be that orderly if the Colonel ever got back to see the rest of the Fritzies.

"We found beer, wine, kummel, mumm, cognac and everything. I have still the fine kraut-head's pistol and knife.

"About a kilo farther on we ran into 24 boches trying to make it to the machine guns, and at a tank gun one of the officers took a couple of shots at me, and he is now up with the angels. After I got him, the rest of them hollered 'Kamerad!' and we sent them back. There were only two of our boys with me at the time, so you can see that the boches don't like punishment.

"The third night, on the hill, I was lying in a shell hole, and it was raining. One of the boches, who had dropped at the edge of the hole and threw a couple of tons of mud on top of me. I was in an upright position and managed to get my head free, but that was all, and there I was for eight hours, until some men of another regiment dug me out. Every time a shell dropped near me and didn't explode, I figured it was gas, and could see my finish, as I could not move to put my gas mask on. I could see figures moving all night, but could not see whether they were Americans or boches, so I couldn't call, for if it was boches, they would dig me out, but would have stuck me in the neck. I got a pretty bad kink in my back, but am getting along fine."

Three Illinoisians Named as Recipients of Cross. Three Illinois recipients of the Distinguished Service Cross, named today in official War Department citations, were:

Chaplain Julius J. Babst, Twenty-third Infantry. For the following acts of extraordinary heroism in action near St. Etienne, Oct. 2-3. Chaplain Babst is awarded a bar, to be worn with the distinguished service cross awarded him Dec. 2. Chaplain Babst showed magnificent courage in caring for the wounded under heavy fire, having personally administered to over 50 officers and men, also assisting their evacuation. He showed remarkable devotion to duty by acquiring an opportunity to attend chaplains' school, preferring to accompany his regiment into battle, where he labored heroically for seven days, during which time he performed many acts of bravery. Charles Babst father, Naperville, Ill.

Sergeant Emmett Thompson, Company 370th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Mont-de-Sanges, Sept. 20 to Oct. 1. After others had fallen, Sergeant Thompson, then a Corporal, volunteered to look after a detail of secure rations. He succeeded in this mission under very dangerous and trying conditions, and notwithstanding the fact that his detachment suffered numerous casualties, he remained on this duty, and continued to supply the company with rations until completely exhausted. Lucy R. Thompson, mother, 620 Chestnut street, Quincy, Ill.

Supply Sergeant Lester Pascoe, Company M, 370th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Ferme de la Riviere, Oct. 5. A messenger having been wounded by an enemy sniper in the open between the line, Sergeant Pascoe immediately went to his rescue and brought him into the company headquarters, over ground swept by machine-gun and sniper's fire. LABOR SUGGESTS CO-OPERATIVE PLAN FOR RAILROADS

Attorney for Brotherhoods Proposes Government Ownership With One-Half of Profits to Workers.

EMPLOYEES WOULD PICK MOST OF DIRECTORS

One Operating Corporation Provided in Plan—New Territory Would Pay for Extensions.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Railroad labor interests today proposed government ownership and private operation by one large corporation, co-operatively organized and sharing profits with employees, as their solution of the railway problem. Testifying before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, on behalf of the four leading trainmen's brotherhoods and other employee organizations, Glenn E. Plumb of Chicago, recommended that the government acquire all railroad property at a price fairly representing the physical valuation, and entrust the operation to a corporation to be directed jointly by employees, officers and the government. Earnings would be divided equally among employees and the government, and rates would automatically be reduced when profits amounts to more than a fixed rate.

The plan, it was agreed, would provide cheaper financing, give stability to income to security owners, promote efficiency of operation through sharing profits, remove railroad operation from partisan politics, compose conflicts between Federal and State authorities, keep rates at a minimum and eliminate complications in rate schedules. The corporation would be subject to regulations by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which would retain its present regulating powers. Objections to Cabinet Officers. The brotherhoods objected to the railway executives' proposal for establishing a secretary of transportation, saying this would constitute "regulating the people in the interests of capital." They also protested against the Railroad Administration's order forbidding railway employees from taking part in politics, arguing that the solution of the railway problem is a political issue and that employees are entitled to participate. Plumb suggested organization of "an operating corporation where operating ability constituted its sole capital."

"A certain agreed percentage of the net results of operation should belong to this corporation," he said. "The stock of the corporation should be held in trust for the benefit of the employees. The corporation would be administered by a board of directors, who we suggest tentatively, should be selected in this manner: One-third to be elected by the classified employees below the grade of appointed officials; one-third by the appointed officials and employees; the final third being appointed by the President of the United States."

With one-half of the profits going to the government and the other half to the corporation to be distributed among employees, Plumb said, the men would be actuated by a desire to promote efficiency and economy as a means of increasing profit. "Such a scheme," he said, "would render to the public all of the benefits of unified operation. It would eliminate all the costs of competition, without losing any of the benefits of competition."

"Would Remove Objections." "This would remove the operation of the railroads from politics. Government officials could not possibly have anything to say about the employment of men or officials of the road. They would have nothing to say as to construction or extension of new lines."

"The Government would have no power to exact from the public a return which was more than adequate for the maintenance and operation of the service and the public would not need to be protected against high rates and division of profits to private interests."

"You could provide that whenever the total amount of net revenue paid to the Government exceeded 5 per cent of the gross operating revenue, the Interstate Commerce Commission should thereupon adjust the scale of rates in such manner as to absorb this 5 per cent, thereby producing an equivalent of a 5-per-cent reduction in rates."

"Wage and employment disputes would be settled by wage boards and adjustment similar to those now maintained by the railroad administration."

The Government could provide capital from one-fourth to one-half cheaper than private investors, said Plumb, and "this should mean an annual saving under Government ownership in the cost of capital from $400,000,000 to $500,000,000."

The result might be a reduction of 10 per cent in rates, he declared. Railroad security owners would have a fixed rate of return and this, he predicted, would eliminate continual agitation before Congress and state legislatures for measures affecting financial interests of railroads.

New Territory Would Pay. "New territory," said Plumb, "would be made to contribute its portion of the costs of the extensions somewhat commensurate with the increase in value which the land within that territory would realize by reason of the construction of such extensions."

Attacking the proposal for a Federal department of transportation, Plumb said if this were done for railroads it would soon be demanded for the steel business, packing business and other industries, and "very quickly we would have a sovereign people enslaved by regulations to protect in the hands of a few the capital which they had accumulated from the labor of all."

CLAIMS 2000 ACRES HE SAYS SLIPPED UNDER STRETCHED TAPE

Texas Filling on Oil Lands Declared Wet Rawhide Lines Failed to Measure School Districts Accurately.

By the Associated Press. SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 7.—Inaccuracies in the measurement of school lands in Texas may bring a fortune to A. F. Barrett of this city, who has filed for oil and gas leases on 2000 acres in the Ranger and Burkhurst districts. It became known today, Barrett has arranged with a development company of Oklahoma City to take over the leases when they are granted for the purpose of developing them. The lands are called "excess school lands."

When the surveys were made many years ago rawhide tape lines were used in measuring them and in wet weather the line stretched with the result that tracts described as containing 640 acres really contain as high sometimes as 800 acres. This

METHODIST GATHERING HERE TO CLOSE TODAY

Plans Discussed for Raising $1,500,000 in St. Louis Area Toward $80,000,000 Fund.

Methods of raising $1,500,000 in Missouri, Southern Illinois and Arkansas, toward the national fund of $80,000,000 in observance of the centenary of Methodist missions, were discussed today at the second and closing day's session of the World Program Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church for the St. Louis Area, at Union Church, 3610 Belmont boulevard.

The topics and speakers in the morning session were: "Working Program," D. D. Forsyth; "Intensive Campaign," C. S. Ward; "Securing Big Gifts," L. B. Bowers; "Mobilizing and Training Workers," G. F. Ream; "Sunday School and Epworth League," W. A. Brown; "Laymen as Workers," C. F. Reiser; "Senior and Young People," J. D. Crowther.

The luncheon arranged for the women's banquet at the Hotel Statler, Mrs. W. A. Quayle presiding; the Minute Men at the City Club; Campaign leaders, at the Statler; Sunday School workers, at Central Y. M. C. A.; other groups at the Y. M. C. A. and Union Church.

The afternoon theme is "Arousing and Inspiring the Church," and tonight the subject will be "Rebuilding the World," and a service flag program will be held. D. D. Forsyth and M. S. Rice will speak. At Union Memorial (Negro) Church, tonight, M. S. Rice, J. D. Crowther and G. F. Ream will speak.

Bishop Quayle, speaking before the gathering yesterday afternoon, replied to Henry Watterson's lament over the enactment of the prohibition amendment. Watterson is editor emeritus of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal. Bishop Quayle said:

"We never had a drunken God. He was always a sober God, voting for a dry world. He hasn't begun to get it until lately."

"Mr. Watterson ought to speak to his wife, and tell her to tell him to keep quiet. People will begin to think something is the matter with him. The world gone wrong, because it has gone right? The bottom fallen out, because the top has been put on?"

"People who go around saying that prohibition is unconstitutional belong between the covers of an old-fashioned yellow almanac."

"A bishop can't go to a theater but if he watches these people he can get the same enjoyment. Why go to the movies when you can see such people in real life?"

St. Louis to Help Supply the World's Needs:

"Our opportunity and mission in peace as in war is to supply the world's needs."

PIANIST QUESTIONED ABOUT WOMAN'S DEATH

Husband Finds Body and Note Saying Musician Could Explain Her Act.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 7.—Moses Boguslawski of Chicago, pianist, formerly of Kansas City, was taken to police headquarters last night at the conclusion of a recital at a downtown hotel and questioned regarding the death of Mrs. Gladys Funk, a young music teacher, whose body was found at the Funk home yesterday by the husband, William A. Funk, when he returned from a trip as a railroad mail clerk. Mrs. Funk had been shot once through the breast and a pistol, identified by Funk as her property, lay near by.

A note on a dresser, unsigned, but said by Funk to be in his wife's handwriting, asked him to inform Boguslawski of what she had done, and added that Boguslawski could explain.

Makes Signed Statement. Boguslawski was questioned until midnight, when he was released on his own recognizance to appear before the chief of detectives this morning. He made a signed statement, according to the police, in which he said that he could ascribe no reason for Mrs. Funk to kill herself or for her to mention his name in a suicide note.

Wednesday and again yesterday, Mrs. Funk called on the telephone and asked for an engagement, the statement said, and was told that, because of the press of engagements already made, Boguslawski could not see her, and shortly before he was to begin his recital he again was called and told that Mrs. Funk had killed herself.

Studied With Pianist. Mrs. Funk formerly studied with the pianist, who gained commendation here before removing to Chicago.

The note found by Funk read: "Please call Mr. Boguslawski at the Hotel M— before 8 o'clock and

MISSOURI SENT 140,257 MEN

Crowder's Report Says 32 Per Cent of Number Enlisted.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The report of Provost Marshal General Crowder, just made public, shows that Missouri provided 140,257 for military service, of which 33.81 per cent enlisted. The draft boards supplied 92,843 men, or 66.19 per cent, at a total cost of $538,839.22, or $6.81 per man inducted into the service. Missouri sent by enlistment 29,863 men into the army, 14,132 into the navy and 349 into the Marine Corps. There were 12,340 "deserters," or men refusing to go into service, the State's percentage of "deserters" being 2.68, as against the national percentage of 4.45. The poorest comparative showing by the State was in the matter of physical rejections, there being 16.50 per cent disqualified for physical defects. Only Georgia, Virginia and Alabama, the last named with 14.16 per cent, had higher percentages.

Tax Returns on Way.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Several million tax return blanks for incomes of $5000 and less were dispatched to revenue collectors today by the Internal Revenue Bureau. These will be released by collectors as soon as President Wilson signs the revenue bill, nearing completion in Congress. Corporate income and excess profits return forms and blank forms for individual incomes of more than $5000 will be in the hands of collectors before March 1.

REPUBLICANS IN HOUSE FIGHT OVER PREACHER'S SEAT

Committee Votes to Oust Foster and Give Place to Editor Elmer, Convicted Under Espionage Law.

BITTER CAUCUS ROW FOLLOWS THIS ACTION

Some Republicans Oppose Seating of Elmer and Democrats Assert Latter Cannot Sit Near Them.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 7.—Having refused to consider the most important of the evidence submitted by the Rev. E. H. Foster, Democrat, a one-armed, 73-year-old Baptist preacher, whose seat, as Representative from Dent County, is being contested by William P. Elmer, Salem editor, who was convicted of violation of the espionage act, during the war, a majority of the Republicans on the House Elections Committee last night voted to report in favor of ousting the Rev. Mr. Foster and seating Elmer.

The decision precipitated a bitter fight in the Republican House caucus, which immediately followed the adjournment of the committee, and after three hours, the caucus dispersed, because several Republican members refused to agree to vote to seat Elmer in view of his conviction in the Federal court in St. Louis and the $1000 fine which is hanging over him.

The committee members voting to seat Elmer were: Byron H. Coon of Joplin, chairman; Frank Otto Bittner, St. Louis; H. W. Chalfant, Camden County; J. W. McKay, Knox County; W. R. Lay, Crawford County; Charles P. Comer, St. Louis.

Votes With Democrats.

The Rev. Isom P. Langley of Laclede County, a Republican, voted with the Democrats against ousting the Rev. Mr. Foster, while G. W. Babcock of Butler County, a Republican, voted against the Republican majority on the particular matter being voted on, which was whether a block of 12 votes counted for the Rev. Mr. Foster would be arbitrarily thrown out. Babcock opposed letting the case stand on such a technicality, and said he would make a separate report, contending that all the ballots in the county should be recounted.

The fight for Elmer in the committee, and later in the caucus, was led by Lay, who has managed Elmer's contest, and Bittner and Comer of St. Louis.

Inability of the Republicans to bring into line several members who insisted that no man who had been convicted of violation of the espionage laws should be permitted to be a member of the House, caused a decision to hold another caucus Tuesday, when further efforts will be made to settle the matter.

Republicans Fear Defeat.

In the meantime, it is understood the committee will not make its report, fearing that, if the matter went to the floor of the House, the Republican majority there, of seven, would be overcome by Republicans who would vote for the Rev. Mr. Foster.

The Foster evidence which the committee refused to consider consisted of certified copies of the indictment and the record of conviction of Elmer, and a section of the Constitution of the United States.

Elmer was a member of the Missouri Legislature 15 years ago, and the Rev. Mr. Foster's attorneys contended that he then took the oath and came within the provisions of the Constitution.

Unusual interest has been taken in this contest, because of the circumstances surrounding it, and because of the question of public policy involved. Many Republicans are taking the position that the Republicanism from a purely political standpoint, cannot afford to seat Elmer, and be subjected to the criticism which they feel is sure to follow such action.

Democrats Object to Him.

If Elmer should be seated, a rearrangement of the seating of House members probably will become necessary. The Rev. Mr. Foster, of course, sits on the Democratic side, and, ordinarily, his seat would be taken by Elmer, as all other seats are occupied, but Democrats sitting close to the Rev. Mr. Foster's seat say they will not permit Elmer to sit in their midst.

Representative Norman of Stoddard County, one of them, said today that the Democrats would not have Elmer neighboring them. However, it is not probable that Elmer would want to sit there, and he undoubtedly could arrange to change seats with some Democrat who sits close to the dividing line between the Democrats and Republicans.

NEW NEWSPAPER IN BERLIN IN FRENCH CONTINUES PROPAGANDA

Some of Articles Highly Eulogistic to Wilson—Others in Spirit to Placate Germany's Late Enemies.

SPECIAL Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Having lost their hold upon La Gazette des Ardennes—that German propaganda sheet published in French in the invaded districts with the help of one or two Frenchmen who are in prison awaiting trial for treason—the German authorities have begun to publish a newspaper, also printed in French, named the World Peace.

This newspaper is published in Berlin and has as its policies "Reconciliation of the peoples; the league of nations; the resumption of friendly relations between the peoples; the free exchange of intellectual, political and economical rights."

In the first number, printed just before Christmas, its editorial is headed "France and Germany." One sentence—from which may be derived the impression likely to be created—reads:

"In France the men and affairs of Germany are looked upon naturally from the French point of view, with sensibility and sometimes nervousness, which appears strange to us, and makes us known in a false light."

In the news columns are found articles by Reichstag Deputies, notably one who rebuked the British prisoners at Ruhleben that on the outbreak of the war he exclaimed: "Long live France," although he forgets that since that time he has voted all the war credits in Germany.

Another big article concerns President Wilson's arrival and sojourn in France. Eulogistic stories are written about him and his name is often mentioned in many other parts of the news matter.

As regards Paris news, the high cost of living figures prominently, while there is also mention of the "progress of revolutionary ideas."

THE EASIEST WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, that itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—ADV.

MAN RUN OVER BY OLIVE STREET CAR DIES

Succumbs Twelve Hours After Accident at Thirteenth Street During Rush Hour.

Arnold Gogel, 35 years old, a widower, living at the Bristol Hotel, 5789 Pershing avenue, for many years manager of the Marx & Haas Clothing Co., died at the city hospital at 5:20 a. m. today, 12 hours after he had been run over and both legs severed by the trailer of an eastbound Olive-Deimar car at Thirteenth street.

An investigation of the accident will be made by the Coroner. Motorman Harry Linwood, 5603 Theodosia avenue, and Conductors John Burgen, 6139 Ellis avenue, and Walter Luker, 5239A Garfield avenue, were arrested and were held until a bondsman employed by the Chicago Railways signed their bonds for $1500 each.

Police were unable to find any eye witnesses. Gogel, with Jacob R. Spieldoch, 5014 Knight avenue, a salesman for the clothing company, had left the plant at Thirteenth street and Washington avenue together to catch a westbound Olive car. As they neared Thirteenth and Olive streets Spieldoch saw a car taking on passengers at Fourteenth street and ran west to catch it, supposing Gogel would follow him. When he turned to look for Gogel he saw him lying in the eastbound tracks at Thirteenth street with both legs cut off.

Police advanced the theory that Gogel, upon reaching Olive street, had probably sighted a car making the Twelfth street loop and waiting, facing north at Thirteenth street, to proceed west on Olive street. They say he apparently started to run for this car and was cut off by the eastbound car, running directly into the trailer. Motorman Linwood said he did not see Gogel. Gogel had been with the clothing company 40 years. A son, Carl Gogel, 5785 Westminster place, is in the advertising department of the St. Louis Times.

19,000 STATE AUTO LICENSES ISSUED AT THE CITY HALL

Last Year the Total Numbered 34,211—Issued at Rate of 1400 a Day.

Up to last night 19,000 State automobile licenses had been issued at the special registration place, room 409, city hall. It is expected the issuing of licenses will continue another month. It began Jan. 2. Last year the total number of State licenses issued at the St. Louis office was 34,211. They are now being given out at the rate of about 1400 a day.

At the License Collector's office, room 102, city hall, 13,600 city automobile licenses have been issued since Jan. 2. Last year the total number issued was 28,473. They are now being issued at the rate of about 1000 a day.

Under the law, all 1919 licenses were required to be taken out by Feb. 1, but this is not being strictly enforced, and the police, following their usual custom, will not begin making arrests of those without licenses until early in March.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS LIKE TO ENLIST IN THE NAVY

More Than 10 Per Cent of Recruits Here Have Seen Service in the Army.

More than 10 per cent of the men enlisted in the last month at the Navy Recruiting Station, Seventh and Chestnut streets, were discharged soldiers. About 500 applications for enlistment were made in this period and about 50 former soldiers accepted.

The percentage of former service men will steadily increase, in the opinion of Lieut. F. M. Willson, in charge of recruiting, as the men find difficulty in obtaining employment. "The soldiers get an idea of the navy from their trips to and from France, and they learn that it's a pretty fine branch of the service," Lieut. Willson explained. "If the navy had allowed its men to go home on 30 days' furlough before offering them discharges, it is my belief that the majority of them would have remained in the service."

RAILWAY AND UNDERGROUND STRIKE IN LONDON IS ENDED

Men Return to Work Pending a Settlement on Terms Agreeable to Both Sides.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 7.—The effect of the agreement which has ended the strike on the railways leading into London on demands which may be made by employees of omnibus and tramcar lines is not as yet definitely settled. The secretary of the licensed vehicle workers union said today: "As the terms of settlement appear to be satisfactory to the parties concerned, any action of ours must obviously be delayed or held up."

It has been agreed, pending consideration of general conditions, that the railway men on the underground services will work for eight hours a day, exclusive of meal time. The companies, the bulletin adds, will offer reasonable facilities for the men meeting their ordinary physical needs.

FORMER POLICEMAN FOUND GUILTY OF THEFT, FINED $100

Calvin H. Reed, of 3924 Laclede avenue, formerly a policeman in the Carr Street District, was convicted of petty larceny yesterday by a jury.

In Judge Calhoun's Court and was fined $100. It was charged that while on duty and in uniform on the night of Oct. 17, Reed robbed the warehouse of the American Railway Express Co., Tenth street and Franklin avenue.

John F. Abbott of 3750 Page boulevard, night watchman at the express building, was jointly indicted with Reed, but is to be tried separately. Reed did not testify. After the theft charge was made against him he resigned from the Police Department. In a report to Chief Young he admitted taking sweaters, other clothing and tools from the express building, but said they were given to him by Abbott.

A WARNING!!

Some unscrupulous suitors are daily larding Washington avenue and annoying the public in general, some of them have even gone so far as to hand out OUR business cards (which they obtained by trickery) and tell our customers that the Well Clothing Co. has been driven out of town. We have NO BRANCH STORES, and the sole object of these unscrupulous suitors is to lure the people to these little stores on the side streets where they can relieve them of their hard-earned money. Notwithstanding the fact that we have done everything in our power to protect the people from this nuisance, we have not succeeded so far! Hence this warning to our customers and the public at large to be on the lookout for these tricksters.

HOW INFIRMARY IS BEING CHANGED TO ARMY HOSPITAL

Latest Methods Known to Surgery Will Be Used and Every Comfort Made for 1000 Soldiers.

35 SURGEONS ARE TO BE IN ATTENDANCE

Officers All Told Will Number 40 With 40 Nurses and 350 Enlisted Men to Help.

How the city infirmary, at 5800 Arsenal street is being transformed into a United States general hospital for convalescing soldiers was related to a Post-Dispatch reporter today by Capt. H. W. Cutler of the United States Army Hospital Division, who gave a detailed description of the changes to be made. In civilian life Capt. Cutler is an architect; in the army he is a hospital designer, and was sent here to have the infirmary buildings changed to meet Government requirements.

When ready to receive the soldiers about April 1, the hospital will accommodate more than 1000 patients and will have a staff of 40 officers, 35 of whom will be physicians and surgeons; 350 enlisted men and 40 nurses. In addition to being a modern infirmary, Capt. Cutler explained as the present buildings are all in good condition and afford easy facilities for adaptation to modern ideas, the spacious grounds will have a canteen, a general store, a theater and other recreation features to supplement the regular comforts of these institutions.

Situated on one of the highest points in St. Louis, from which a view of several miles in all directions may be had, the site becomes most desirable for the purpose, and Capt. Cutler spoke enthusiastically of this feature, and its proximity to the city, with easy access by car line, will have a good effect on the patients. Yet it is far enough out to give all the benefits of pure air.

Last Word in Equipment.

When fully and newly equipped throughout it will contain the latest word in modern apparatus and surgical appliances, with a fully equipped laboratory for research work. Everything learned in the war experiences in surgery, materia medica, sterilization and sanitation will be incorporated in the equipment in some form or other.

All the buildings of the present infirmary, together with the west building of the present isolation hospital, which lies about 1000 feet east of the main building, will be utilized by the army general hospital.

The main, or center building of the group, has four stories including the ground floor, which is a kind of sub-basement in front but is level with the ground in the rear. It will house on the ground floor the registrar's offices, dressing rooms, baths, medical examining rooms, mess halls and surgical and detention wards.

Patients will enter the institution through the registrar's department, where their papers and records will be taken; their uniforms removed and fumigated, cleaned, pressed and stored; baths given and new linen issued. Then they go to the medical examination room where they will be examined, their cases diagnosed and classified and themselves assigned to the proper wards.

Cafeteria Mess Halls.

On each side of the registrar's department, or receiving station, will be mess halls of two classes, on the west side a cafeteria for the enlisted men of the staff, and on the east side a mess hall for the officers. The mess hall for the enlisted men will be able to move about unassisted, and a "set up" mess, or separate room with tables, where the men who cannot help themselves will be served.

The extreme end of the ground floor will be a surgical ward, and the extreme west end, a detention ward for nervous cases which may develop here. Nervous cases will not be kept here permanently, but will be transferred to psychiatric hospitals elsewhere.

The floor above this, which is the first floor at the front entrance, will have the general administrative offices of the commanding officer, Col. R. J. Edgar Jr., the Adjutant and his clerical force, and, off the same center corridor, a suite of rooms where the patients may receive visitors and relatives. Offices of the chaplains will adjoin these rooms, and the chaplains will arrange all interviews.

Extending off each side of the main corridor will be the general wards for surgical patients—cases of no special complications.

The second floor of the center building will be for officer patients, and the top floor will be quarters for officers of the staff. The remaining upper floors adjoining the center building will be for general convalescents. Another building on the west will be for general convalescents and the extreme west building of the group will be the nurses' home.

Acute Surgical Unit.

The building on the south—to the rear of the main building—new known as the infirmary hospital, will be the acute surgical unit of the general hospital. The ground floor will have a complete suite for major surgery, with recovery wards and offices of the chief of the surgical service. The second floor will have rooms for dental surgery; eye, ear, nose and throat surgery; a complete

X-ray division, and a recovery ward. A second building, directly south of the present infirmary hospital, will have barber shops, billiard and reading rooms and a general store or canteen. The earnings from this store will be used for the general welfare of the patients.

The present kitchen building, after being renovated and newly equipped, will house the 350 enlisted men of the staff on the upper floors.

The present chapel, situated east of the main building, will be fitted out as a laboratory for general research work. It will contain a clinical and pathological laboratory, together with a bacteriological and chemical laboratory, with preparation rooms where cultures will be prepared. Mortuary and autopsy work will be done in the basement.

The present extreme west isolation building will be used for bed patients of the acute surgical division of the new hospital.

The work now being done consists of connecting the present hospital to the main building with covered corridors, having inclined planes instead of stairways, so that patients can be moved from one building to another without exposure to the weather. These corridors, or chutes, will also be used to transport food from the kitchen in thermos carts, the latest invention to serve food in hospitals. The thermos principle keeps the food, hot or cold as may be required, at an even temperature until it is served. About 400 feet

East of the main building is the old theater of the infirmary. This is being reconstructed and will be operated by the Red Cross. The interiors of every building of the group will be repainted and redecorated, until the place shall be made to look like new. The city is at present fumigating the whole.

The lease with the city calls for a rental of $1000 a month and specifies that the buildings may be turned back to the city at the termination of the lease.

DR. R. S. HILL IS EXONERATED

Charges Had Been Made Against Him in Woman's Death.

Dr. Russell S. Hill, 7 Sunset avenue, Richmond Heights, was discharged by Judge Krueger in the Court of Criminal Correction last Saturday when he appeared to answer a coroner's charge that he had been responsible for the death of Mrs. Hazel Ehrman, 8604 Hickory street.

Dr. Webster W. de Vault of the city hospital testified that Mrs. Ehrman had told him that her condition was due to a fall and not to an operation. It had been charged by the coroner that Mrs. Ehrman's death was believed to have been caused by peritonitis, resulting from an operation. Dr. Hill denied having performed an operation.

STOP DANDRUFF!

HAIR GETS THICK, WAVY AND GLOSSY

Girls! Draw a cloth through your hair and double its beauty.

Spend a few cents! Dandruff vanishes and hair stops coming out.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff, is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed, and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will, you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and away at first—growing out all over your scalp—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.—ADV.

Doctors Find

Remedy for Colds and Flu

Calotabs, the New Nauseless Calomel, Cuts Short Colds and Prevents Flu by Keeping Liver Active.

Physicians have learned from experience, during the epidemic of influenza, that one of the most important factors in the prevention of flu and pneumonia is to keep the liver active so that the digestive organs may be in perfect working order and the system thereby enabled to throw off solids, check sore throats, and resist serious complications. For this purpose they have found that the new, nausealess calomel, called Calotabs, is far more effective even than the old style calomel, which was formerly the universal favorite, as Calotabs do not weaken nor squalid the patient, nor interfere with the appetite and digestion.

At the first sign of a cold or sore throat, doctors recommend one Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea, nor the slightest interference with your diet, pleasure, or work. Next morning you wake up feeling fine, your liver is active, and your appetite is keen for a good breakfast. For your protection Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price 35c. All druggists recommend and guarantee Calotabs. Remember, your money back if you are not glad you bought Calotabs.—ADV.

FIGHTING CONTINUES IN BREMEN

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Wednesday, Feb. 5.—Unconfirmed press dispatches from Bremen indicate that the insurgents there are continuing guerrilla warfare in the outskirts of the city and in the harbor, notwithstanding the Government's claim of uprising was estimated at 30 dead and more than 100 wounded, the insurgents being the heaviest losers. Property damage is believed to be slight, as the communists failed to stubbornly defend their strongholds and retreat toward the suburbs as soon as Government troops began to advance in earnest.

Col. Hunter's Son in Balloon Mishap.

Col. George K. Hunter, commandant of Jefferson Barracks, was notified yesterday that his son, Lieutenant-Colonel George E. Hunter of the Air Service, had been one of three passengers in a balloon at Salisbury, Md., which took fire at an altitude of 7200 feet. U. S. HEALTH SERVICE BODY WANTS AID OF THE CHURCHES

Pamphlet Issued Urging Special Services and Meetings to Be Held Feb. 23.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—As a step in a nation-wide campaign, ministers and church leaders are urged in a pamphlet issued by the United States Public Health Service to observe Feb. 23 as Health Sunday, with special sermons and meetings that day devoted to discussion of means of improving morals.

Separate meetings for men and women are suggested to consider education of children, the organization of a permanent community committee to improve civic conditions and to provide a wholesome recreation, especially for returning soldiers.

"The public health campaign is a community task," says the Public Health Service's announcement. "The church, as an important part of the community, should not fail to help in this important work."

"Your whole community will be at the station when the boys come marching home." Are you making sure that the profiteers of vice are not planning to take advantage of the days of festivity to dishonor them before they get settled again in the normal ways of life? Are you sure that demoralization will not mean demoralization?"

The Public Health Service has prepared a program of procedure for community organizations, with particular reference to the churches' participation.

The Japanese Way to Remove Corns Doesn't Hurt a Bit—Easy and Simple

The Magic Touch of Ice-Mint Does It. Just a Touch Stops Soreness, Then the Corn or Callous Shrivels and Lifts Off. Try It. Your Feet Will Feel Cool and Fine.

"Just a touch of Ice-Mint and 'Oh!' what relief. Corns and calluses vanish, soreness disappears and you can dance all night or walk all day and your corns won't hurt a bit. No matter what you have tried or how many times you have been disappointed, here is a real help for you at last. From the very second that Ice-Mint touches that sore, tender corn your poor, tired, aching feet will feel so cool, easy and comfortable that you will just sigh with relief. Think of it: just a little touch of that delightful, cooling Ice-Mint and real foot joy is yours. No matter how old or tough your corn is he will shrivel right up and you can pick him out after a touch of Ice-Mint. No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying it or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin. Ice-Mint is the real Japanese secret of fine, healthy, little feet. Prevents foot odor and keeps them cool, sweet and comfortable. It is now selling like wildfire here. Just ask in any drug store for a little Ice-Mint and give your poor, suffering, tired feet the treat of their lives. There is nothing better, nor nothing 'just as good.'—ADV.

OPPOSES RAISING GERMAN BLOCKADE ON RAW MATERIAL

Capt. Andre Tardieu Says Enemy Destroyed One-Third of the Factories in France.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Feb. 7.—Capt. Andre Tardieu in an interview yesterday said: "France is opposed to the raising of the blockade on raw materials against Germany until her damage to French industries has been made good. Germany was responsible for the destruction of one-third of the factories of France and if allowed to resume production with equal facilities, it will be a serious economic handicap for us."

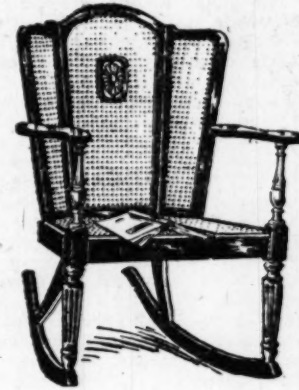

Capt. Tardieu expressed the belief that the allies would not disagree with the contention of France. He added that the blockade committee advocates the raising of the raw material embargo against neutrals at the earliest possible date with the understanding that materials are not to be reshipped to Germany.

Valley Delegates
on His Return
Joint River and Rail Commission.

Three Qualities That Anyone Must Possess to Be "Good Company"

By DOROTHY DIX.

total commission that will be separate and distinct from all other governmental departments, which shall have complete jurisdiction over all inland waterways, with full legal authority to proceed with the proposed improvement of such waterways, and with Government marine equipment to be operated upon them.

We suggest the appointment of such a commission for the reason that it is our firm belief that the proper and efficient use of our waterways will be assured only until their improvement, operation and protection are placed under the complete control of those who are known to favor the development of water transportation.

Government Equipment. In addition to the work of placing our inland rivers in a serviceable condition, we strongly recommend that the Government build equipment for use on all our main water highways, and that the Government operate such equipment until the trade is thoroughly established, and until the necessary legislation for the protection of the operation of waterway equipment is obtained, at which time private capital should be allowed to purchase the equipment and continue its operation.

Unlike the railroads our rivers belong to the Government, and having neglected to properly improve them, and having permitted unsafe water service, it is now clearly the duty of the Government to encourage the restoration of water traffic and make it safe for private capital to engage in the business which it cannot profitably do under existing conditions.

Feeders for Merchant Marine. We are now wisely spending hundreds of millions of dollars in building ships to restore our merchant marine service. These ships will carry our products to the markets of the world. It is just as important and necessary for us to provide for the prompt and economical transportation of our products to our seaports from which these ocean carriers will operate as it is to furnish the vessels for the ocean service.

It is understood that the ships now being built for the Government will be operated by the Government until the trade is firmly established on the various ocean routes, at which time individuals or private corporations may purchase them and continue their operation. This same policy should be pursued upon our inland waterways as the necessity for it is plainly apparent. Believing that through Government control and operation only can river navigation be promptly and permanently restored, we urge the Government to immediately effect such restoration and provide for it the necessary protection until the business has been firmly and safely re-established.

Employment for Soldiers. The adoption of the plan that we have proposed would not only solve our vexatious transportation question, but it would greatly assist in the solution of another pressing problem that is now commanding the attention of our thoughtful men, namely, the full employment of labor during the period of reconstruction which now faces us. The large amount of work to be done by the numerous municipalities located upon the waterways in the building of terminals, warehouses, grain elevators, would give employment to thousands of people who have been engaged in war industries, as well as to many of our returning soldiers.

It would also provide useful employment for many of our capable engineers who are now returning from France, and whose services would be invaluable in the prosecution of the proposed work.

There is no other one important undertaking in which our Government could or should engage that does as much to accomplish this desirable result.

Mr. President, in closing we reiterate that we believe that adequate and cheap transportation for our country's commerce is today our greatest need.

We also believe that these necessary increased transportation facilities can only be provided through the fullest practical use of our interior waterways.

We herewith attach a copy of our appeal to Congress, which sets out this matter in greater detail and describes more fully the projects of river improvement, which demands the first attention.

We earnestly hope, Mr. President, that you will approve this definite plan to bring into use the water transportation possibilities of our great nation. If this is done, the domestic and foreign commerce of the United States will receive an impetus that will be felt in every factory, on every farm and in every home in America.

The value of the Panama Canal under a system of inland waterways development has been given great attention at this session.

CORRESPONDENT writes: "You often hear it said that such a one is 'good company.' What is meant by that expression? Does it imply that one is intellectual?"

Not necessarily. Some of the dearest company and the greatest borer of the world are those high-browed individuals who are top-heavy with knowledge, and who go monologuing through life about the dry-as-dust subtleties of which they happen to have made a study. Nobody can imagine passing a joyous evening listening to an abstruse discourse on higher mathematics. Nor do we yearn for undiluted doses of the society of those who possess like an understudy of a woman's culture club.

My definition of good company is individual who is an intelligent, clear, and an equally intelligent, person. An intelligent talker is a person who has observation, imagination, and who possesses the power to translate these into pictures for us. He, or she, keeps us perpetually interested, presenting to us a never-ending series of new impressions, ideas and suggestions that open up fresh vistas of thought to us.

And an intelligent listener is one who is the slant of the day, "gets it," and who has the intelligence to comprehend the background of a common experience and comprehend what we are saying, and imagination to follow us into uncharted fields. They are those who give us inspiration to talk to, because they always know.

When an individual who knows how to talk and how to listen, and who has one who is good company, he or she must be equally efficient at either end of the game, for if he or she must be equally efficient, it is to be agreeable, and to be agreeable is to be a good company. The person on earth who carries us, who he or she monopolizes the conversation, while the other spellbinder falls silent in the presence of his or her companion, is a store dummy.

I should say that the first quality of a person who is good company is sympathy. The people we enjoy being with are those who enter into our moods, who weep with us when we weep and who rejoice with us when we rejoice. They have the humanity that enables them to take an interest in our personal affairs.

The second quality those who are good company must possess is cheerfulness. We turn as instinctively to a cheerful being as we do to a cheerful face. Always a funny story to tell, and whose laughter is hung on the air like a flower does to the breeze. Nobody's idea of good company is a sour, solemn visage, in which the mouth is drawn down into a cynical line, and whose bitter smile is a blight on any good mood.

One of us willingly seek the society of those who have always told him a story to tell and who weep upon didn't love him. I didn't love him at all, and I knew it, even though I meant to marry him. "But, why—in heaven's name?" "Because I was so lonely and unhappy at home. You don't know how desperately unhappy. . . . No mother, never daring to see my sister (she ran away, too). . . . My friendships at school discouraged me. I was alone, a strange figure, a great, empty, lonesome house and my father to bully me and make cruel fun of me because I'm not pretty. . . . That's why I ran away with a man I didn't love—because I wanted freedom and a little happiness."

"Good Lord!" he murmured beneath his breath, awed by the pitiful, childish simplicity of her confession and the deep damnation that had waited upon her.

"So it's over!" she cried—"over, and I've learned my lesson, and I'm disgraced forever, and I'm alone!" "Stop right there!" he checked her roughly. "You're not friendless yet, and that nullifies all the rest. Be glad you've had your romance and learned your lesson. I'm not grateful for your kindness," she interrupted. "But the disgrace—that can't be blotted out."

"Oh, yes, it can," he insisted bluntly. "There's a way I know—"

A glimmering of that way had only that instant let a little light in upon the darkness of his soliloquy. Distress at her rose and began to walk and try to make what he had in mind seem right and reasonable.

"You mean beg my father to take me back. I'll die first!" "There mustn't be any more talk, or even any thought, of anything like that. I understand too well that he is impossible of you. But there is one way out—a perfectly right way—if you're willing and brave enough to take a chance—a long chance."

Somehow she seemed to gain hope of his tone. She sat up, following him with eyes that sought incredulously to his words.

"Have I any choice?" she asked. "I'm desperate enough. . . . 'God knows,' he said, 'you'll have to be!'"

He paused, standing over her. "Desperate enough to marry a man who's bound to die within six months and leave you free? I'm that man; the doctors give me six months more of life. I'm alone in the world, with no one dependent upon me, nothing to look forward to but a death that will benefit nobody—a useless end to a useless life. . . . What you take my

Letters From St. Louis Girl War Workers in France—10

Miss Helen Day Tells of Some of the Discomforts She Experienced at the Front.

NOW that she is back in Paris, all discomforts at an end, and the censorship off, Miss Helen Day recounts details of life in the zone of advance as a Red Cross canteen worker and nurse's aid, which she omitted from the cheery letters she wrote to her mother, Mrs. John A. Day, of the Buckingham Hotel, while undergoing the most harrowing of her experience. It really is only by way of emphasizing her present appreciation of the blessings of civilization that she recalls them even now. Following an account of particularly joyous days of peering provided by Red Cross officials and friends, evidently eager to honor two girls still in bad spattered, even blood-spattered uniforms, just in from the front, she writes:

"It is so good to be back in Paris. One can live mighty simply, one discovers, and get along, but, oh! what it means after all, to just simply live! For the light heat and food. Necessities they are considered, but to me right now they seem like luxuries. At Evacuation 6 and 7 we lived in a part of a sort of warehouse, though small, where Red Cross supplies were kept. Our living quarters were just partitioned off from the rest by army blankets which were hung up. The corner of the room and I had a very little dark. Had to burn a candle at night of day. Well, that's really nothing when you're helping win a war."

But Issoudun was a camp de luxe in comparison. Evacuations 6 and 7 were at Souilly, where Pershing had his headquarters, general headquarters of the American army. We were there only a week, yet may remember by my letters. Then were assigned to Evacuation 4, where we lived in our own khaki tent, officers' size for two, which seemed like gold in comparison to what we had left. We each had a box at the foot of our cots to use for toilet articles, as a dresser. Alice's trench mirror, the only one in our possession, came in handy. Without the light, the very steady, suspended upon the canvas wall with the wind blowing, I could see to do my hair. Between the cots was a row of duck boards as flooring, upon which we also stood. We carried two bags, "duffles." So you can imagine how much space there was to walk. I got almost tired of clambering over those things, never quite sure, because it always seemed so funny to me.

"Pelt fine all the time. Wish I could always keep the color I have now." After describing the poor meals that fell to her lot in one place, Miss Day continues in another of her letters:

"I came to Paris literally starved out with a gnawing sense of hunger, which I found vaguely disturbing. Sounds funny now, doesn't it? I am only telling you all this so you may know what I am appreciating so much in this very moment. Don't think I am complaining. We had loads of fun about it all. I wouldn't have given up a moment of it. At its worst it was half as bad as I finished!"

"I'm now in Paris—and the war is over!" HELEN

Why Brides Are "Misunderstood"

It's Because Too Many Cooks Spoil the Love Feast and Everybody Offers a Different Recipe for Making a Success of Matrimony.

By Helen Rowland.

SOMETIMES it seems as though there are almost as many recipes for making a husband happy as there are for avoiding the "flu."

When a girl marries, EVERYBODY has a bit of priceless advice to offer her—an infallible prescription for success in matrimony. And here are some of them:

1. Never tell your husband anything. What he doesn't know won't worry him. Remember, my dear, nothing charms a man like a little "mystery!"

2. Tell your husband EVERYTHING! Never let him suspect you of deceiving him, or he'll never trust you or respect you again. A man's mind is like a non-refillable bottle, you know, and once he gets a notion in it nothing on earth will get it out again.

3. Remember that YOU are your husband's "keeper." Men are just raw material, and making a husband out of a man is one of the highest plastic arts known to civilization. Your mission is to hold onto heaven with one hand—and onto HIM with the other!

4. For heaven's sake, don't try to "reform" your husband! If you don't like him "as is," why did you marry him? A man doesn't need in order to acquire a life critic, but in order to acquire an admirer. Remember, you are not your husband's "keeper."

5. Start right! Take the whip-hand at the altar or you'll never get it. Show him who is master in the house. When a girl marries she has to choose between sitting on a throne and standing on a door mat.

6. Never let your husband KNOW that you rule him, my dear. A man, like a horse, has to be BACKED into the shafts before he can be driven.

7. Flatter your husband! "Fill him full of self-admiration and what slops over is yours!"

8. Don't flatter your husband too much, my dear, or he'll soon begin to wonder why such a perfect combination of Solomon and the Apollo Belvedere should waste time on an insignificant little thing like you!

9. Try to join in all your husband's amusements, pastimes and interests. Never let him learn to take his pleasures with others!

10. For the love of liberty, let your husband take his amusements in his own way, and with his own friends sometimes. Don't chain him to your side or he'll soon get a file and break the chains.

11. Never go away for a summer vacation and leave your husband to his own devices. The city is full of "love pirates" and temptations. Besides, once he learns to get along without you he'll no longer find you necessary.

12. An ounce of summer vacation is better than a pound of cure in the divorce court, my dear! A little matrimonial parting has held many a couple together. A man never appreciates his wife so much as when he has learned how empty and lonely life is without her.

And so it goes—just like the prescriptions all your friends give you for curing a cold or the grip—stay in the house, get out in the air, don't eat anything, eat all you can, open all the windows, keep out of a draft, and yet we wonder why Brides are SO capricious!

HELEN

oleomargarine and storage eggs cannot be tasted in cake if all the other materials are first-class and the cake is well flavored.

The Housewife's Scrapbook

SOUR cream makes a delicious sauce for puddings like rice, Rebecca, farina or cottage puddings. Sweeten with molasses, add a pinch of salt and flavor with a generous grating of nutmeg.

As a carpet cleaner bran slightly dampened, thrown on the carpet and then thoroughly swept out is unexcelled. Removes all dust and, being damp, prevents dust from flying. For sponging matting use bran water.

A poinsettia is a pretty easy decoration to place on food to make it look extra dainty and appetizing. On some foods it can be made of jelly, and upon others of meats, tomatoes, cranberries or pimientos.

Garnishing foods adds a great deal to their looks. Pretty garnishes are parsley, celery, lettuce, watercress, olives, hard-boiled eggs, dates, nuts, grapes and maraschino cherries.

Baked apples are more tempting to vary an otherwise monotonous breakfast if a few nuts and raisins are added, and whipped cream is delicious.

Among the good substitutes or stretchers for chicken salad are cold veal, roast pork and tuna. Celery and pimiento helps disguise their use.

Never use water which has been standing overnight in the teakettle. In the morning fill it with fresh water, boil and use at once.

Don't allow graniteware to dry over a hot fire, as the heat in expanding may cause the outside to scale.

When paraffin is taken off the top of jelly, etc., it should be melted at once to free it from the fruit.

Clean bacon fat may be used in combination with butter to make white sauces.

Never use butter to fry fish; it burns before the fish can have time to cook.

Fastening clothes on the line by the corners is the surest way of tearing them.

Apples, stuffed with raisins and chopped nuts, then baked, are delicious.

Dull velvet frocks are relieved by jackets of gold and blue brocade.

Molasses cannot be used in metal utensils; a tinny taste.

Dates stuffed with marshmallows are delicious.

Vaseline stains should be sponged with ether.

The Sandman Story For To-night

BY MRS. P. A. WALKER.
The Knight's Story.

IN the hall of little Robert's home stood a suit of armor of steel holding a long spear in one hand, while the other hung by its side. Robert had always seen this armor, but still he could never remember passing it when he did not wonder if there was a man inside of it who might reach out and take hold of him.

His mother had told him it was made of steel, and showed him one day there was nothing inside it. She also told him that it was very likely worn by some brave knight long ago.

"Can I be a knight when I grow up?" "I am brave?" asked Robert. "You are my little knight now," his mother had replied, "and it is only when you are naughty that you are not brave, for then you let Black Sin conquer the good little boy."

Robert thought a great deal about what his mother said, and he very much wanted to be a brave knight, but one day when his mother was going out and could not take him with her Robert began to cry.

All that his good nurse could do or say would not make him stop screaming, and when she tried to take him in her arms to carry him upstairs he kicked her.

Nurse sat him in the big chair in the hall and told him he could not get down until he said he was sorry, and I shall tell your mother you are not a brave knight any more," she said, as she went upstairs.

Robert stopped crying and began to think. He wondered if the Knight who had worn the steel armor had ever kicked his nurse and he wondered if there wasn't a man inside it sometimes after all.

And by and by the armor seemed to burst at him. Robert rubbed his eyes and stared, for he was sure the hand that hung by its side was slowly being raised.

Up and up it went until the hand pointed straight at Robert. "You will never become a brave knight," said the armor, "if you cry like that."

SOMEHOW Robert did not feel afraid at all of the armor now. He moved to the edge of the chair and let his legs hang over as he asked, "Did you ever cry when you were a little boy, Mr. Knight?"

"Boys did not cry when I was a boy," replied the Knight. "We were too busy growing up to be brave men so we would become Knights and serve our King."

"Did you ever play Indian?" asked Robert, wishing to change the subject.

"I never heard of an Indian; what are they like?" asked the Knight.

"Oh! how queer. I thought you fought the Indians," said Robert. "I wear an Indian suit, the one with the feathers sticking up all around my head; you have seen me with it on."

"Oh, yes, but I did not know what it was," replied the Knight. "As I told you, when I was a boy we were too busy to play; we had to read and study and grow up as we could wear an armor and serve our King."

"But how did you serve him?" asked Robert, feeling rather sorry for the Knight who had never played Indian.

"Oh! we had to go to war and we had to follow our King wherever he led us," said the Knight. "We knew that we had to conquer the evil things in life first before we could conquer the big ones. If I had cried as you did I should never have become a Knight."

"How did you conquer Old Black Sin?" asked Robert.

"I was brave enough to be good," answered the Knight, "and at last he found out I was stronger than he and let me alone."

The bang of a door awoke Robert, for he had been asleep, of course, all this time and there stood his mother smiling at him.

"Were you my brave knight?" she asked.

"No, mother, Old Black Sin conquered me, but I won't let him any more," said Robert; "I am going to be like the Knight inside the armor and be brave enough to be a good boy after this."

Of course, his mother told him there was no one inside the old armor, but Robert knew there was, at least that afternoon, and after that when he was inclined to be a bad boy he always went to the hall and somehow he was always brave enough to fight off Old Black Sin when he stood in front of the armor of the Knight who was brave enough to be good.

The Destroying Angel

Synopsis of Opening Installments

HUGH MORTEN WHITAKER, a prosperous young New York lawyer, is told by eminent physicians that he cannot live more than six months, and on the same day he learns that the girl he loves has eloped with another man. He goes to a country town to kill himself. Registering at a hotel as "Hugh Morton," he is shown to the room of a "Mrs. Morton," who has left word she is expecting her husband. She is about to swallow a fatal dose of poison when Whitaker enters. He discovers she is Mary Ladislav, a wife of his set, who a few days before eloped with her father's chauffeur. They did not marry. Mr. Morton's chauffeur, having sent her to this little town to await him, after obtaining from her all the valuables she possessed and decamping, Whitaker and she were discussing her situation at the close of the last installment.

"And you have youth, health, and a life before you!" He sighed sadly.

"You wouldn't say that, if you understood."

"There are worse things to be put up with than youth and health and a life before you."

"But—how can I live? What am I to do?"

"Have you thought of going home?"

"I can't possibly."

"Have you made sure of that?"

"I have written to your father—excuse me."

"I sent him a special delivery three days ago, and—yesterday a telegram came. I knew it wouldn't do any good, but I—"

"Everything. He didn't answer. He won't, ever."

"From what Whitaker knew of Mary Ladislav, he felt this to be a perfectly true statement. At a loss, he felt silent, waiting his hands together as he tried to find other words wherewith to comfort and reassure the girl.

"The best friend, elbows on knees, and shoulders cringing.

"What hurts so?" she asked. . . . "What people will think. . . . What, the bitter, bitter shame of it. And yet I haven't any right to complain. I deserve it all; I've earned my punishment."

"Oh, I say!"

"But I have, because—because I name to free yourself? Heaven my witness, you're welcome to it."

"Oh," she breathed, aghast, "what are you saying?"

"I'm proposing marriage," he said, with one quiet, one smile.

"Please listen; I came to this place to make a quick end to my troubles—but I've changed my mind about that, now. What's happened in this room has made me see that nobody has any right to—hasten things. But I mean to leave the country—immediately—and let death find me where it will. I shall leave behind me a name and a little money, neither of any conceivable use to me. Will you take them, employ them to make your life what it was meant to be? It's a little thing, but it will make me feel a lot more fit to act out of this world—to know I've left at least one decent act to mark my memory. There's only this far-fetched chance—I may live. It's a million-to-one shot, but you've got to hear it in my mind. But really you can't lose."

"Oh, stop, stop!" she implored him, half hysterical. "To think of marrying to benefit by the death of a man like you—"

"You're no right to look at it that way," he had a wry, secret smile for his specious sophistry. "You're being asked to confer, not to accept. Please don't act out of kindness to a hopeless man. I'd go mad if I didn't know you were safe from a recurrence of the folly of this afternoon."

"Don't she cry—don't tempt me. You're no right. . . . You don't know how frantic I am. . . ."

"I do," he countered frankly. "I'm depending on just that to swing you to my point of view. You've got to come to it. I mean you shall marry me."

She stared up at him, spellbound, insensibly yielding to the dominating force of his will. It was inevitable. He was scarcely less desperate than she—and no less overwrought and unstrung; and he was the stronger; in the natural course of things his will could not but prevail. She was little more than a child, accustomed to yield and go where others led or pointed out the path. What resistance could she offer to the dominating force of a man of full stature, arrogant in his strength and—hounded by devils? And he in the fatuity of his soul believed that he was right, that he was fighting for the girl's best interests, fighting—and not ungenerously—to save her from the ravaging consequences of her indiscretion!

The bald truth is, he was hardly a responsible agent, distracted by the ravings of an ego maddened by the shadow of annihilation, as well as by contemplation of the girl's wretched plight, he saw all things in distorted perspective. He had his being in a nightmare world of frightful, insane realities. He could have conceived of nothing too terrible and preposterous to seem reasonable and right.

The last trace of evening light had faded out of the world before they were agreed. Darkness wrapped them in its folds; they were but as voices warring in a black and boundless void.

Whitaker struck a match and applied it to the solitary gas jet. A thin, blue, sputtering tongue of flame revealed them to one another. The girl still crouched in her armchair, weary and spent, her powers of contention all vitiated by the losing struggle. Whitaker was trembling with nervous fatigue.

"Well," he demanded. "Oh, have your own way," she said drearily. "If it must be . . ."

"It's for the best," he insisted obstinately. "You'll never regret it."

"One of us will—either you or I," she said quietly. "It's too one-sided. You want to give all and ask nothing in return. It's a fool's bargain."

He hesitated, stammering with surprise. She had a habit of saying the unexpected. "A fool's bargain!"—the wisdom of the sage from the lips of a child.

"Then it's settled," he said, businesslike, offering his hand. "Fool's bargain or not—it's a bargain."

She rose unhesitating, then trusted her slender fingers to his palm. She said nothing. The steady gaze of her extraordinary eyes abashed him.

"Come along and let's get it over," he muttered clumsily. "It's late, and there's a train to New York at 10:30, you might as well catch it."

She withdrew her hand, but continued to regard him steadfastly with her enigmatic, strange stare. "So," she said coolly, "that's settled. . . ."

"I'm afraid you couldn't catch an earlier one," he evaded. "Have you any baggage?"

"Only my suit case. It won't take a minute to pack that."

"No hurry," he mumbled. . . .

They left the hotel together. Whitaker got his change of a hundred dollars at the desk—"Mrs. Morton's" bill, of course, included with his—and bribed the bell boy to take the suit case to the railway station and leave it there, together with his own hand bag. Since he had unaccountably conceived a determination to continue living for a time, he meant to seek out more pleasant accommodations for the night.

WALL STREET MART

U. S. Steel Sells Near 88,

Lowest Level Reached in Many Months.

By Leased Wire From the New York

Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The Evening

Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"It was possible to enumerate several considerations, most of them already familiar or foreseen, to account for the general downward movement of prices on the stock exchange today; a movement which was especially severe in the case of steel and railroad shares."

Wall Street had known that the leverage on profits and incomes in the forthcoming tax bill would be heavy, but the actual figures as published this morning, were impressive and afforded a "talking point" to the professional operators, and continued to be the principal factor in the market.

The situation of the copper market remained uncertain. Against the possibility that general business would be stirred up by the cut of 4 cents a pound in prices, was balanced the other possibility that business would not develop in quantity until quotations had gone even lower.

Today's statement of the Bank of France again shows rapid and heavy expansion of the currency.

Outstanding notes have increased

$15,000,000 for the week; they now amount to $500,000,000 more than at the end of 1918, and to $1,400,000,000 more than a year ago. This for considerably less than the increase of $1,500,000,000 in the German bank's note circulation as compared with a year ago, but it is a fairly rapid process of inflation.

LONDON MONEY.

Nothing but the Truth.

IT was during the interval and the chief comedian was being bombarded by a ubiquitous reporter who repeated the same question noted for the vacuity of its statements.

But the comedian was an old bird and was giving nothing away.

"I tell you what you want, old man," he said, chaffingly, to the journalist. "What you really need is a Bishop on your staff."

"A Bishop!" gasped the visitor.

"Whatever for?"

"Well," smilingly answered the comedian, "some of the answers in your paper are badly in need of confirmation."—London Answers.

Their Excuses

THEIR EXCUSES.
TWO men, who are quite well off, but very miserly in their expenditures, met recently in the gallery of a theater.
Each was annoyed to be seen by the other in the cheapest place of the house.
"What brings you here?" each asked the other.
"To tell the truth," said the first,

"I've got a fearful cold in my head, and as the heat ascends, I came up here where it was warm. Besides, I'm a terrible sufferer from rheumatism. But what brings you here?"

"My opera glasses!"

"Your opera glasses?"

"Yes; they enlarge too much. I can't see from the boxes what is going on on the stage. I have to come up here in the gallery to be able to see with them at all."—Connelville Evening News.
